DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Long and loud blasts of the big siren on the plant of the Goodyear Cotton Mills company at Goodyear next Monday morning need not disturb the people of Danielson and other parts of the town of Killingly into the belief that the rapidly developing village is facing some kind of terror; for the whistle will be sounded to mark the birth of operations of a new Goodyear activity—at Los Angeles, where the big factory that has been under construction for many months past will begin turning out tires. Upon receipt of a telegram announcing the hauling out of the ovens of the first tire to be manufactured in the new plant, the siren on the big Goodyear plant in this town will sound one long blast, and this will be followed by seven other loud and cheery blasts, each one of the final seven as a salute to a thousand of the 7,000 tires that the California plant will turn out every working day.

In common with the great parent plants of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company at Akron, O., and all of the subsidiary plants of this gigantic corporation throughout the country, the Killingly Goodyear plant will salute the beginning of activities at the newest addition to the Goodyear family, the Los Angeles plant, at which raw cotton is taken from the bales, put through all of the textile processes that enter into the making of tire fabric and where rubber workers join with the textile men in turning out tire production intended to supply the Pacific coast trade.

Claire N. Turner, formerly at the Goodyear plant here, is now at Los Angeles in an important administrative and financial capacity at the newest plant of the concern.

Whistles in Canada, California, Ohio and Arizona will be sounding a welcome to the Goodyear baby in distant union with the siren on the Killingly plant.

It has been noted as of special interest that Douglas Fairbanks, the noted movie star, will get the first tire that comes out of the California plant. Who will get the other 6999 that are to be turned out the first day isn't so important, but the assurance is given, all will be good, scouts, or scoutesses.

Judge G. S. Washburn, his chauffeur and another resident of Boston, had a short but wild ride at Attawaugan Friday, about noon, when the machine in which they were riding was sharply swerved out of the state highway by the quick-thinking chauffeur and on to the rough going on the side of the highway, the machine hurdling a little ditch in the desperate course it was forced to follow in a successful effort to prevent Leo Lamoureux, age 6, from being crushed to death.

The boy was walking along the side of the state highway, not far from the Attawaugan school as the Washburn car came bowling along from the south. The car was close upon the boy when two girls started to chase him and he dashed out directly into the path of the oncoming machine. There was nothing for the chauffeur to do, but risk his own neck and that of his passengers in the long chance of heading the car off the highway and directly at a ditch, but he did it and got away with it, the car being only incidentally damaged and the people in the car unharmed.

Attawaugan long has been recognized as a danger spot both for motorists and the residents of the village, where there are no sidewalks and the practice of walking along the edge, and even in the center, of the state highway is a common one.

As the result of a visitation to his place in Attawaugan Friday by Lieut. Robert Bridgeman of the state police and another officer of that department, William Welch was brought before Judge W. Penner Woodward of the town court during the afternoon, to answer to charges of selling Jamaica ginger, keeping with intent to sell and with conducting a lottery. The officers purchased some of the ginger and seized more that was in Welch's place of business.

In court Mr. Welch was charged on two counts with actual sales of ginger on another count with keeping with intent to sell and on still another with conducting a lottery. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 on each count, with costs of prosecution, and paid.

The lottery charge grew out of the officers finding a little board with numbers under pasters. Those who took chances in this lottery paid a certain sum to tear off pasters in an effort to obtain a lucky number for which a prize would be given.

In addition to their activities here Friday, the state police made another official visit to the town of Plainfield, where they seized a still, some moonshine whiskey and jakey during a raid last week, and caused the arrests of other violators.

Mr. Bryan's eleventh commandment. The funeral of Oliver Tatro of Attawaugan was held from his home in that place Friday morning with a high mass of requiem at St. Joseph's church in Danville. Rev. Ignatius Kost being celebrant of the mass. The bearers were Frank Root, Charles Clouthier, Joseph Aubin, Alexander Barbeau, Julius Nason and Henry Lajeunesse. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Henry Hickey, 86, is dead at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clemons in East Brooklyn. Mr. Hickey, for a great many years a resident of the town of Pomfret, had been ill with pneumonia for more than a week. He was a native of Ireland. He leaves his wife and three daughters, Mrs. Nellie Clemons, Mrs. Andrew Murdoch of Pomfret, and Miss Mary Hickey, of New York.

The annual Children's day program will be carried out at the morning service at the Westfield Congregational church Sunday. There will be baptism of children in connection with this service.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Taylor of Webster were visitors with relatives in Danielson on Friday.

St. Rev. Edward Campion Acheson will confer the rite of confirmation on a class at St. Alban's church Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Bishop Acheson will deliver a sermon at this service.

Mrs. Ernest R. Warren is at Knoxville Tenn., where her sister is ill.

A heat wave that hit Danielson early Friday proved distressing to many people, chilled by weeks of dreary and wet weather.

Good progress is being made on the work of constructing a stockhouse for the Quineburg company.

Don't fail to attend the auction sale of household goods at the residence of J. H. Milligan at the corner of Main and Winter streets, Danielson, on Saturday, June 12, at 1:30 o'clock p. m. Witt Bros., auctioneers, office and sales rooms No. 42 Main street, Danielson, Conn., adv.

The high price of lumber did not seem to stand in the way Friday of a host of Danielson men indulging in the building of platforms.

A degree was conferred on candidates at Friday evening's meeting of Dorcas Rebekah lodge.

Robert W. Bors, just returned from England, tells of motorists paying $5 cents a gallon for gasoline in the tight little Isle. There is interest here, too, in Mr. Bors' report that some other liquids are selling over there at about the old schedule of prices, whereas over here they are nicking one for $16 a quart and telling you they are doing you a favor by letting you have it at that price. It's a queer world insofar as liquids are concerned, whether one uses them in a car-burner or in a "tank."

Baseball games galore are scheduled for the week-end. All of the mill and town teams in this section have games scheduled for today and tomorrow, and the fan is left to wish that he might be in three places at once.

Norfolk lodge members will observe St. John's day, June 20, by attending services in a body at the Congregational church.

PUTNAM

Various matters awaiting the attention of the court were heard at Friday morning's session of the superior court, Judge Keeler presiding. During the course of the morning the docket was called and cases restored or stricken off.

The report of Judge M. A. Shumway, state referee, in the uncontested divorce case of Herbert J. Barnett vs. Myriec Barnett, of Danielson, heard in chambers at Danielson last Monday, was filed with Judge Keeler. He ordered a decree of divorce in favor of the plaintiff entered.

Judge Keeler heard the uncontested claim for divorce of Mrs. Lillian Harold of Wauregan vs. Ell J. Harold. Mrs. Harold testified that she married Mr. Harold at Waterville June 23, 1914, and that they lived in that place for a time. March 1, 1916, Harold, without just cause and without any warning, left his wife and later left again. Each time Mrs. Harold returned to him, she testified.

The plaintiff asserted that her husband was given much to drinking intoxicants and did not furnish her the support that was her due.

Only last Sunday, Mrs. Harold asserted, her husband came to her and pleaded with her to return to him. At the time he tried to borrow money from her, claiming that he had only $1.50.

Judge Keeler granted the divorce, on the ground of desertion, and gave Mrs. Harold permission to resume her maiden name—Lillian Morrison. The plaintiff was represented by Attorney A. G. Bill. Starting out of this place Friday just afternoon, a squad of state police headed by Lieut. Robert Bridgeman went down in Killingly and started a series of raids on the jakey dens, who, according to all accounts, have been conducting a flourishing business in that town, where there is always something to drink, if you're not particular what it is, notwithstanding the eighteenth amendment, the Volstead act and all of the distinguished rulings pertaining thereto. Complaints about the business being done in Attawaugan and other sections of the town of Killingly are said to have been responsible for the raiding visitation of the state officers.

Delegate Fayette L. Wright of Pomfret, of the Connecticut contingent to the republican national convention at Chicago was listed among the casualties at the gathering of the clans on Friday.

Mr. Wright had a small and apparently innocent looking eruption on his neck when he left here last week-end to make the journey to the Windy City. The eruption developed into a carbuncle, which had to be lanced by a physician who was called to Mr. Wright's hotel. It does not appear from information received here from Chicago that Mr. Wright has been unable to attend the sessions of the convention on account of the troublesome ailment, but he is not having as enjoyable a time as might ordinarily be the case.

The annual floral meeting of the Thompson W. C. T. U. is scheduled to be held Thursday, June 24. Instead of Thursday of next week, as had been originally planned. The meeting is to be at King's Daughters' hall in East Thompson. The hostesses for the meeting are Mrs. Lilla Babbitt, Mrs. Flora Ross, Mrs. Mitta Tourtelotte, and Mrs. Minnie Bixby.

Miss Muriel Backus, of Thompson, a graduate of Putnam high school, is numbered among the members of the class graduated from Smith college at Northampton this week. Miss Backus is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Backus of the neighboring town.

Miss Geraldine Beard, another Putnam high school girl, is to be graduated from Oberlin college this month.

High cost of milk, chocolate and sugar forced a boost Friday in the price of milk shakes at some of the stores in this city. The fact is, however, that the present price for these delicious drinks is only what has been charged for months past for the same kind of a beverage in towns near Putnam. The price now charged is 17 cents, a raise from 11. Two of the 17 cents go to Uncle Sam for war tax.

Attorney Irving H. Miron, assistant to the clerk of the United States senate, is at his home here until October when he will return to Washington.

Officials of the Connecticut company, now operating the trolley line through this city, made an inspection trip over the lines on Friday and noted various facts pertaining to the service here at this time. It is understood that the lines
